In 2013, there were approximately 450,000 diagnoses of sexually transmitted infections (STIs) made in England.

This course enables you to expand your knowledge of sexual health issues. It is a great way to increase knowledge if you are looking into a career in this field of work, or just to increase awareness of different types of STIs, relationships and human reproduction.

This short, auto-marked programme will give you the knowledge you need to understand the impact and key issues surrounding sexual health.

A great addition to your CV to show your commitment to health and social care, this programme is also beneficial for general knowledge.

- Place of study: Learn from home
- Type of course: Online distance learning course with no exams
- Course duration: An average of 4 hours.

Full customer service support will be provided throughout the course.

Section 1: Relationships

In this section, your learners will cover the difference between friendships and romantic relationships, the legal age for intimacy and reasons why people may enter into close relationships.

Section 2: Sexually transmitted infections

Your learners will learn about different types of STIs, how they are transmitted and their symptoms. They will also look at the effects of untreated chlamydia, HIV and AIDS.

Section 3: Human reproduction

In this section, your learners will look at human anatomy in relation to sexual health awareness, including male and female reproductive organs and the process of menstruation.

Section 4: Contraception

Your learners will cover different methods of contraception, their advantages and disadvantages and where they can be obtained from.

Section 5: The media

In this section, your learners will look at the portrayal of sex in the media and how society and the media need to change to progress sexual health awareness in modern day society.
